FALL SET

Each year in the fall, the leaves of many trees turn colors. The beautiful shades of red, yellow, and orange do the trick by covering the landscape with warm colors before all of the green goes! People often say that the leaves "turn" orange. However, that isn't quite true. The leaves of a single tree are already made of cells when they are green. Throughout the warm months that summer, the cells are slowly changing.

WHY LEAVES CHANGE COLORS

1. When do leaves get their colors?
2. What is the green substance that plants need to make food during photosynthesis?
3. What two things cause the tree to stop producing as much chlorophyll?
4. When trees stop making chlorophyll, what colors do you see?

Fall STORY STARTER #1

Elroy and Jamie weren't happy. Their dad had left the house for the day, and he'd told the boys to rake the entire yard before he got back. Otherwise, there would be no allowance that week. It was a huge yard, and piles of leaves were scattered everywhere. That said, they could certainly finish by the end of the day.

Here, however, was the problem. In one hour, all of their friends were going to the movies. It was a double feature of two movies they really wanted to see. The movies were only showing today! They couldn't miss it. That gave them only an hour to remove all of the leaves from this yard.

Fall STORY STARTER #2

The Poole family's favorite autumn activity was apple picking. This morning, they drove west from the city until they reached their favorite orchard. They inhaled the crisp air. They strolled happily between the rows of apple-filled trees. When they saw one they liked, they'd pluck it off.

Ma and Pa Poole could reach the highest, of course. Timmy was the smallest, so he couldn't reach many apples. This disappointed him, but he was having fun anyway. Just then, he spotted it. High in a tree was the perfect apple. His family strolled off, but Timmy couldn't take his eyes off this apple. He had to have it. Unfortunately, it was dangling at least 20 feet up!
